Frankly Expensive

How much does it cost to provide free mail to congressmen? It ran $14.6 million last year, and this year, an election year, it is up to $21.2 million.

Of course, communicating with the constituency is something a congressman is supposed to do. But where does communicating end and electioneering begin? The question is being asked in courts all over the land by candidates running against incumbents. They complain to an increasingly sympathetic judiciary that the congressmen are given an unfair advantage, financed by the taxpayer, in their campaigns for reelection.

The controversy provides additional evidence of a growing public interest in election and campaign finance reforms and brings the day closer when the nation will address itself to this critical problem.—Miami (Fla.) Herald

Falling Leaves

Someone at the National Geographic Society has figured that a 60-year old shade tree may shed 35,000 leaves during the fall leaf-dropping season. No report on pine needles, but the count of fallen needles per tree must be approximately the same.

The society offered no explanation as to why it is that there are at least 100,000 leaves or pine needles on the ground per tree when raking-up time comes around.

What those National Geographic people don't know is that fallen leaves and needles, like bonchangers are endowed with fantastic powers of procreation.

Just as coathangers breed and multiply in dark closets, those seemingly lifeless leaves and needles begin proliferating the moment they begin fluttering earthward.—Florence (S.C.) Morning News

Let The Seller Beware

The Federal Trade Commission has approved a new rule giving a buyer three days in which to back out of a deal involving $25 or more with a door-to-door salesman.

The three-day cooling off period will be welcomed by anyone who has ever been pushed, pressured or conned by a door-to-door huckster into buying something he really did not want, could not afford and did not need.

A deal is a deal. And perhaps the rule should be that when you make one, no matter how much you regret it later, you should be forced to stick with it. But there are mitigating circumstances.

The new rule is a reasonable solution to the problems of high pressure sales pitches, misrepresentation of price and product and the salesman who refuses to leave until he gets an order.—Tulsa (Okla.) World

marshall

HARRISON, Idaho (AP) — The Rev. Ron Mitchell is a 31-year-old Baptist pastor who puts plenty of store in the law.

He's the marshal in this North Idaho community of about 200 persons and pastor of its only church. He's also a bonafide deputy in the Kootenai County Sheriff's Department.

"If anything, I think my taking the job as marshal has brought people together at Harrison," the Rev. Mr. Mitchell said. "The marshal used to be a laughing matter, but that has now completely changed."

The pastor said he acquired a hand gun in recent weeks but at first questioned whether he would buy any bullets.

Today the gun is loaded and he said he would use it if need be in the line of duty.

Not long after taking over his additional duties here on the east shores of Coeur d'Alene Lake, the Rev. Mr. Mitchell was advised by the sheriff that two armed men were headed his way in a car. Unarmed, the clergyman halted the auto, disarmed the men and took them into custody.

"The Scriptures bear out that one should obey the laws of the land," he said.

The arrests came at 10:45 on a Sunday morning and the Rev. Mr. Mitchell said he had to ask a private citizen, a duck hunter armed with a shotgun, to stand guard over the two prisoners until a patrol car could come from Coeur d'Alene. The pastor rushed away to the Baptist Church and delivered his sermon.

He said the first day he preached here there were 30 persons in the congregation. This past summer he declined a well-meant suggestion not to conduct services on the Sunday set aside for the annual Old Timers picnic and 66 persons came to hear him preach while the celebration parade went on outside.

A father of six children and 1971 graduate of Grand Canyon College in Phoenix, Ariz., the Rev. Mr. Mitchell is trying to build a youth center in Harrison. He has some pledges and a pool table but no building.

"The kids in Harrison have too little to do," he said. "I think a center would help juvenile problems."

Husband's effort to view daughter's birth thwarted

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — A young Arkansas couple who traveled 540 miles so the husband might witness the birth of their baby is headed home—their wish unfulfilled.

But Jan and Wayne McGibbons of Conway, Ark., said because of the experience they are carrying with them a firmer resolve to update what they consider antiquated hospital policies in their home state.

The McGibbons came to Peoria in September because they could not find a hospital in Memphis and, again, were unsuccessful.

Through a sympathetic neighbor, they learned of a hospital in Peoria—described as "progressive" at a natural childbirth convention—which allowed the husband to witness the birth.

Their minds were made up. With their own doctor's approval, they made arrangements at Proctor Hospital in Peoria and during Jan's eighth month of pregnancy, they drove 144 hours to a city about which they knew little and where they had no friends.

"Everybody thought we were crazy," said Wayne. "They couldn't imagine why a husband would want to see his wife go through all that pain."

"We promised to help each other. If it was so bad, then she needed me," he said.

But the plan went awry. Jan's pelvic structure was found to be too small and physicians at Proctor decided she should give birth by Caesarean.

Wayne would not be able to witness the birth of Stephanie Diane.

"It was so sad," said one woman who worked with the couple. "They worked to get up here to be able to do what they wanted. Everybody told them they were crazy. Now they have to go back and face those people."

Despite his disappointment, Wayne said before the couple departed Peoria Monday that they resolved to return to Conway and fight for liberalized hospital policies.

More problems

Seemingly contemplating a problem connected with placing a large pipe line adjacent to South Main St. (State Highway 29), a workman straddles a ditch, using a ledge and a section pipe for support. Traveling on South Main is becoming more hazardous with the daily mass movements of machinery, as construction on the widening of the highway continues.

More U.S. warplanes
sent to Vietnam

SAIGON (AP) — The United States rushed more warplanes to South Vietnam today in the war's biggest military aid effort. It will make the South Vietnamese air force the third largest in the world with more than 2,000 aircraft.

North Vietnam accused the Nixon administration for the big buildup, declaring: "The acts definitely reject Nixon and other U.S. officials' statements that peace in Vietnam is within reach."

Despite a partial U.S. bombing halt above the 20th parallel, Hanoi claimed that American air strikes below the parallel against Vinh and Dong Hoi cities and a number of villages in the southern peninsula killed and wounded hundreds of civilians and caused heavy property damage.

The North Vietnamese Foreign Ministry issued an official statement condemning the U.S. moves.

U.S. military sources said the South Vietnamese Air Force will have received as many as 400 new aircraft by mid-November. These include F4, A1 and A1 fighter-bombers, Chinook helicopters and four-engine C130 transports. The shipments began Thursday.

A1 fighter-bombers began arriving today by ship and were being unloaded at the big American-built Newport docks just outside of Saigon.

Disassembled F4s were being hauled into Bien Hoa Air Base, 15 miles northeast of Saigon, by giant C130 transports.

More equipment was flowing into Saigon's Tan Son Nhut Air Base. Thirty of the big Chinook helicopters were at the base, being assembled.

The F4 fighter planes are coming from Iran, Taiwan and South Korea. The Pentagon said these countries have agreed to supply the F4s from their inventories under a barter arrangement because the model is in short supply in the United States.

The Pentagon did not say how the United States would replace the aircraft, but indicated this could be done with newer F4s in the future or possibly F4 Phantoms.

"We want to give President

Thieu the strength to hold off North Vietnam after the U.S. withdraws," said one U.S. official in explaining the buildup.

A draft peace agreement worked out last month in Paris between the United States and North Vietnam stipulates the parties may replace existing military equipment only on a one-to-one basis once the agreement is signed.

U.S. sources said the increase in the size of the Vietnamese Air Force by at least 25 per cent was aimed at inducing President Thieu to accept a modified cease-fire plan. He has balked at some provisions and has insisted among other things that all North Vietnamese forces be withdrawn from the South.

Jerry's in the WAC's

HEIDELBERG, Germany (AP) — Pvt. Jerry Garrett, 18, Greenfield, Ind., arrived in Europe last Friday and to his dismay found himself assigned to a Women's Army Corps unit. He's surrounded by girls.

What for any other soldier would be a dream come true is a nightmare for Garrett.

"I've got a fiancée in the States and I doubt if she would like the idea," Garrett said.

"I enlisted in the Army to serve my country. I didn't come to work with a bunch of girls," Garrett complained. "There's no other male here. I'm the only one, and that's what I don't like."

Garrett wanted to become a military policeman, but the Army trained him as a personnel clerk.

Capt. Anna Young, commanding officer of Company B where Garrett is assigned, said WAC company clerks are scarce and when she heard Garrett was available, she said, "Sure! Great!"

Indians
reject
proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Justice Department spokesman said early Saturday that a new proposal has been made to a group of 400 militant Indians who have occupied the Bureau of Indian Affairs Building here since Thursday and have defied orders to leave.

But the Indians shouted down the proposal when it was presented to them by Asst. U.S. Marshal James F. Palmer. Basically, the proposal was to provide accommodations for the Indians who have gathered in Washington to protest their treatment by the government.

The beat of a drum reverberated throughout the BIA building.

FOOTPRINTS

By GEORGE SMITH

An open column to the Hempstead County Men's Basketball League:

Once upon a time there were two small girls who often played together in the streets and woods near the community where they lived.

The girls, Ima Black and Eura White, were great friends and enjoyed doing the same things. . . shooting marbles, playing Run, Sheep Run, riding their donkeys across the meadows and just generally enjoying each other's company.

The little Black girl was so much fun to play with most of the time. But every once in a while, when things were going bad for her, she would get mad, hold her breath until she turned red and then sit in a corner and pout. The little White girl was generally tried to ignore Ima Black when she was in a bad mood. But as some people will, Ima would try . . . sometimes too hard . . . to push her point across. Eura White could sympathize with Ima's problems on occasion, but Eura had problems of her own and if Ima didn't want to play, Eura went looking elsewhere for entertainment.

One day Ima and Eura were sitting under the big oak tree near the end of the lane, shooting a friendly game of marbles. Eura was untouchable that particular day at marbles. Why, she was already 30 marbles to the good, and scoring in on the little Black girl's favorite marble — Black Pride — with her trusty steelie. Ima, whose shooting hand wasn't up to par, saw she was about to lose her Black Pride, so she quickly scooped it up, and ran home, skirt-tails flying.

Ima told her mother what had happened and her mother advised her never to play marbles again. . . especially for keeps.

Eura came over to Ima's house later and asked her to come out and play. Ima's mother said she couldn't come out, that since the little girls couldn't play together without getting into a fuss, that they simply couldn't play together at all.

Both girls set up a howl that could be heard in the next county. They cried, they screamed, they howled. Feeling that the girls were really fond of each other, Ima's mother relented and the two girls skipped off together.

Several days later a notice was published on the school bulletin board concerning the annual Figure-4 Jackass Race to be held the following Saturday. Both Ima and Eura had been planning to enter the race for the past year. Each had an extremely fast jackass and each hoped to take home the top prize in the junior division.

The day of the race, both girls were at the course an hour early. Friends and relatives of both girls showed up to cheer for their favorites. The race started in a cloud of dust, and when the contestants cleared the cloud, Eura was leading by a head and Ima was a firm second. Ima was a proud little girl who didn't like being second in anything; she began to lay on the switch and her jackass responded gallantly, drawing within a hairbreadth of first place. But Eura was determined to win and slowly she increased her lead.

Midway of the second corner Ima saw she couldn't win, and began her pattered defense against defeat. She stopped her jackass and complained to a line judge about the condition of the track, about the poor trail markings along the side of the track, about the improper start and even accused Eura of a foul on the first turn. Ima's friends and relatives, seeing she was beaten took up the cause with a hue and cry, cursing the race officials, and urging Ima to "do your thing."

Ima did her thing. She lost the race. Morale: If you don't like the rules of race, get your jackass out.

Helen Help Us!

—by Helen Bottel—

Advice to a Sports Dad

DEAR HELEN AND SUE: "Martin" the athletic "underachiever" has lots of company. There's no greater torture than P. E. (physical education) for kids who don't measure up.

Here's how it was in my high school gym classes: We would work on a certain exercise or game for three weeks, then be expected to compete in a test with the girls who had made the team. Naturally we awkward or slow ones were laughed at. The teachers had no time for those who really needed help—they were too busy grooming team members for further glories.

After the tests, if you complained about the grade, you were again compared to

"super-person," and next quarter your grade dropped again because you weren't "cooperative."

Come on, P.E. teachers, start helping those who CAN'T, instead of those who can (without your help). And don't say it's the effort, not the grade that counts, because all colleges know is that you have a 2.8 average rather than a 3.0 A bad gym and health-class grade could get you turned down. —BEEN THERE

I believe that P.E. should not be graded, and young people should not be required to compete unless they wish, but rather enjoy physical exercise at their own speed, under no pressures. Most of us enjoy some kind of sport if we don't feel "compared" to more successful achievers. Let's bring P.E. back to recreation level again and forget the

Olympics syndrome. —TOM

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

I am writing to express concern for Martin—concern that hopefully could result in consideration for others to follow him. I was ridiculed in grade school, high school and college for my lack of athletic ability. Never was any attempt made to analyze my problem, and every gym teacher I had was quick to show his disgust with me and others in similar circumstances.

With the advent of World War II, I received ridicule in basic training, but did all that was required of me. In front line combat I performed honorably and received a Purple Heart, but was kept constantly aware of my less than normal athletic prowess.

Underachievement may tend toward excess achievement elsewhere. For example, today I am a professor and department chairman at a university. I hold a PhD, and CPA, have a national reputation in my profession, and have been published in major journals. Perhaps my disillusionment with athletics influenced me to excel elsewhere. If so, this may be good, but hardly excuses gym teachers who show disrespect to those who do not excel. —STILL NOT

ATHLETIC

RAP:

With Martin's attitude (calling us "ignorant gym teachers"), it's no wonder he doesn't get the special attention he desires. He is apparently tuned out to the many programs the physical education staff at most schools offers to ALL students. There is something for everyone, no matter what his ability.

I am a P.E. teacher, and like many of my colleagues, I will go overboard to help those who help themselves. If Martin sincerely asks for assistance, his teacher will probably set up a development program designed especially for him. Why doesn't he try jogging, bicycling, swimming, or exercising to help develop him physically? Then practice his skills in the school's intramural program?

If he can find no solution with the help that is most certainly available to him, then maybe his problem isn't underachieving in athletic ability but rather overachieving his goals. —P.E. TEACHER

Since P.E. is a required subject, I think it should be structured so that students are grouped by their ability. As it is now, underachievers like me are stuck in the same classes as the Olympic winners of the future. And you're put down a bit farther for lack of brains than lack of brains! —HUMILIATED

HELEN AND SUE:

I was laughed at and mocked in gym, but I tried to ignore it. I asked my P.E. teacher for help and got it! What helped most of all was that I discovered those who laugh meanest aren't the best athletes either. Many P.E. teachers are understanding. Don't consider them "the enemy," and never stop trying. Martin! —EVELYN Tannah Hirsch, who just resigned as editor of the American Contract Bridge League Bulletin to do freelance writing, also plays some rubber bridge. In a recent game at New York's Cavendish Club he found himself in a six-heart contract after one of those complicated bidding sequences that occur in some rubber bridge games.

North's three-club bid was strong in the Stayman sequence being used. Tannah's three-diamond call was some sort of slam try and after several more bids the good slam was reached. Dummy's ace of spades won the first trick and Tannah saw that five trump tricks plus five clubs and two aces would give him the 12 he needed.

He led a trump. East played the queen. Tannah thought a while and remarked, "There is a rhyme that starts something like 'See a queen and pick it up. All the day you'll have good luck,' but I think my luck will be better if I let this queen win."

He played his eight of trumps and East was on lead. It didn't really matter what East did. Tannah was now sure to be able to ruff his two losing spades in dummy; draw West's last three trumps and finally discard his 10 and five of diamonds on dummy's long clubs.

Let's see what would happen if Tannah picked up that trump queen. He could try all sorts of plays from that time on but he would not be able to ruff two spades and bring in the whole trump suit provided West took his sure trump trick at the right time.

this we believe...

That tens of thousands of loyal Democrats in Arkansas are disenchanted with the Presidential nominee of our party, Senator George McGovern.

That there is ample reason for genuine concern, both for our nation's economy and for the national defense, should the McGovern ticket win in Tuesday's election.

That countless numbers of our fellow Democrats in Arkansas feel abandoned by our national party, in the light of its actions during this election year. Therefore, we are actively supporting the re-election of President Richard M. Nixon. We respectfully urge all Arkansas Democrats who share our concern to proudly join with us in doing what is best for America, and best for Arkansas by giving our support and our votes to help

Re-elect the President

(It should be stated that our concern about the Presidency is restricted to that office, and is not related to other races.)

Russians sample Texas

SNYDER, Tex. (AP) — It may not have rye bread and borscht, but three Russian technicians who have been living in this small town for several weeks are discovering that America, West Texas style, isn't too bad.

Accompanied by an efficient blonde American interpreter, they have sampled beer, barbecue, bourbon, enchiladas and that special West Texas delight, the rodeo.

They have socialized with residents in their homes and they have pondered the peculiarities of American television while relaxing in the motel rooms where they live. One even went hunting in New Mexico with a bow and arrow.

But mostly they've lent their technological skills to a high stakes business venture, the revitalization of American Magnesium Co., one of two U. S. producers of the light metallic element.

Here on loan from their government, the engineering specialists are O. G. Desyatnikov, 40; Nikolay V. Bondarenko, 30; and Alexander P. Bogdanov, 35.

Desyatnikov, tall, wavy haired and slightly somber, is the deputy chief engineer of the All-Union Aluminum and Magnesium Institute, or VAMI in Leningrad.

Bogdanov, balding and amiable looking, is the head scientist at the VAMI institute.

Bondarenko, a lean, gregarious person, is assistant manager of the Zaparozhe Metallurgical Plant, a Ukraine facility near the Black Sea.

Two of the three arrived here Sept. 30 and all will end their Texas assignment Nov. 27, target date for concluding the secrecy-shrouded test project.

American Magnesium was forced to shut down operations last year when the Texas Air Control Board ruled it was violating air pollution regulations. Formed in 1968, it was operating with 200 employees at the time.

Now the company is converting from the German-designed magnesium production cell to the Russian VAMI cell, and expects a more efficient process of producing the aluminum-like metal as well as clearance from the Air Control Board.

The company's administrative manager, E. D. Loyd, said, "we're watching the results with optimism and caution but indications are good."

The process, utilizing vast quantities of brine piped into the plant from adjacent Borden County, represents a pilot project which Loyd said could lead to "substantial" expansion.

The Russian advisers live in Snyder's American Motel and spend most of their time at the plant, 10 miles to the west and surrounded by mesquite trees and wide open spaces.

They are accompanied by day, and often by night, by Mrs. Lillian Kassady, an interpreter from Colorado who doubles as their chauffeur.

All three speak some english, but reluctantly, for fear their remarks might be misinterpreted.

Loyd describes the trio as "pleasant, witty, intelligent and very well educated. They are personable and polite and extremely interesting to talk with."

And, he said, "they've made a very favorable impression on the people they've come in contact with."

"The only odd thing about them," said a waitress in the motel restaurant, "is that they nearly always insist on some form of fish with their meal—we sell a lot of shrimp and oysters."

Across the highway is Snyder's only night spot, the Club 250, which, perhaps coincidentally, charges $2.50 for temporary drinking privileges.

"They've not set foot in here," the bartender disclosed.

In an interview, Desyatnikov laughed about the renowned Russian proclivity toward vodka, and said through the interpreter:

"Historically, the French and the Italians are first in drinking ... Therefore, we've gotten Beneficial booze

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Like man, the plant world has its citizens who turn to alcohol to solve a problem.

Because of a minute quantity of alcohol present in certain varieties of barley, the grain has been able to ward off damage from greenbug, an aphid which has become a serious pest.

Scientists are trying to find out if this form of natural resistance can be incorporated into all grain varieties, says the California Farm Bureau Federation.

Urges educated wives

SINGAPORE (UPI) — Singapore women have been urged to depart from the tradition that daughters should receive only enough education to read and write before they get married.

"It is equally, if not more important, that daughters are given an all-round education," Wawan Majid Khan, wife of Singapore's foreign minister, told a women's association of which she is president.

"I would stress the importance of an educated mother to the nation."

The Michigan coast line measures 3,288 miles, rivaled only by Alaska.

along fine on juices ... but when offered a drink we don't turn it down."

The visitors found American food similar to Russian cuisine in some respects but felt the quantity here is excessive.

Barbecue and pizza fared well and Mexican food reminded them of Georgian food—"the spicyness." But steaks were the big winner.

American whiskey's not bad, they said, but Armenian and Georgian cognac is better.

Television's okay, particularly the musical shows, but the commercials are not. They prefer to read and work.

The rodeo was interesting and a western "honky tonk" dance at the city of Big Spring was "great fun ... we love the music and love to dance ... a unique evening."

For souvenirs they lean toward small items which typify the southwest—Indian relics, Mexican handcraft, arrowheads, postcards.

One purchased a bridal gown and veil for his son's bride and another a housecoat for his mother's birthday. The third bought material for an evening gown for his wife.

Their kids can expect western outfits.

They find Snyder "nice, small, quiet, pleasant and businesslike." West Texas, they agreed, is much like the southern Ukraine, wide open and flat.

The people, they said, are best of all, and despite language barriers, "There is no difficulty in communicating because people are people."

Desyatnikov said he was "pleasantly surprised to have such a good experience with the people." And Bogdanov said he found it "very easy to communicate with the young people here." All agreed it has been "a memorable experience."

As the interview ended, Desyatnikov arose and said:

"I want to wish Texans everything the best. Their friendliness and their hospitality has really lived up to the name of Texas."

New song for Women's Lib

By LINDA DEUTSCH

Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It may be the first marching song for women's lib — a tune called "I Am Woman" which sounds a catchy call to revolution and has been selling about 25,000 records per day.

"I've been getting lots of mail about the song from housewives," says composer-singer Helen Reddy. "They say that if they feel depressed they put the record on and it bucks them up."

The lyrics written by Ms. Reddy declare: "I am strong I am invincible I am woman."

The Australian-born performer, who shuns makeup and favors a simple pixie haircut, employs a male housekeeper, and when he's not there she and her husband-manager Jeff Wald share household chores.

"The last person up in the morning makes the bed," she says. "It's only fair. He sleeps in it too."

"I Am Woman," which includes the resolve that "...no one's ever gonna keep me down again," has been snapped up as the theme song for a women's lib movie, "Stand Up and Be Counted," and Ms. Reddy is using it as the title piece in her next album.

"The song started out as a personal statement," says the 30-year-old singer, recalling her struggle to make it as an entertainer.

The daughter of Australian entertainers Stella Lamond and Max Reddy, Helen had grown up in show business and started singing professionally at 15.

When she won a talent contest in 1966 with a prize of a trip to the United States, Ms. Reddy, then divorced, set out with her small daughter Traci to find success. It was a long search.

"I had come to America at precisely the wrong time," she recalls. "Everything was male groups and loud noise. There was just no market for lone girl singers."

She met and married Wald, a talent agent, soon after her arrival. But even with his help her best bookings were one-night stands at state fairs.

Then, five years after her emigration, Ms. Reddy made a record that changed her life. Her rendition of "I Don't Know How to Love Him" from the musical "Jesus Christ Superstar" became a hit. She followed that with "Crazy Love" and was on her way.

A KEY FIGURE in peace negotiations is President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam, who gestures as he addresses a rally of an estimated 25,000 youngsters in Saigon. They are the "Rear Defense Forces."

Rapelling is a technique used by mountain climbers to descend sheer or even overhanging cliffs on a rope.

Act 1 protects train crewmen's jobs and paychecks.

If anyone tells you that Act 1 is going to cost train crewmen their jobs or make them take a cut in earnings, they aren't telling you the truth.

If anyone tells you that Act 1 is going to lower railroad safety standards or mean more accidents, they aren't giving you the facts.

The facts are that the United Transportation Union—the train crewmen's own union—has agreed that fewer men are needed to run a modern diesel-powered freight train efficiently and safely. In fact, the UTU and railroad management in Arkansas have already signed contracts on the methods of carrying out Act 1 when it's passed on November 7.

No one will lose his job. Rather, as men are promoted, retire or leave train service, the unneeded jobs simply will not be refilled.

Keep this in mind, too. If Act 1 doesn't pass, an extra charge will be levied on all freight cars loaded or unloaded in Arkansas.

This year, vote for job protection for train crewmen. And keep Arkansas on the move.

Vote FOR Act 1.

When you vote FOR Act 1, you won't cost anyone his job.

All signs say Nixon sweep total on record, and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's 457 in 1956 is the top Republican figure.

As was reported in NEA's second survey earlier in October, so it is with this final review: No evidence of really major vote shifts toward McGovern could be detected anywhere. Again and again the word came through from analysts, observers and politicians at the other end of the telephone line: "No significant movement for McGovern here."

McGovern's most promising state, Massachusetts, with 14 votes is handed to him in this survey — though some observers think the President may even break through and take this normally heavy Democratic state.

Kept in the doubtful category are West Virginia (6 votes) and Hawaii (4), despite strong advice from some sources that either or both could go to Nixon. Hawaii never has gone Republican in its brief time as a state.

In the previous check, West Virginia was awarded to McGovern, but his position there has since declined. While both national and respected state public opinion polls indicate a narrowing of the once enormous Nixon lead, the President's suggested margins still are generally very substantial and in a few cases (California, for instance) have actually increased.

It is worth noting further, more that Mr. Nixon's lead is probably rock-solid in enough places to assure him a foundation of at least 235 electoral votes (only 35 short of election), before one even examines the outlook in the more hotly contested big northern states.

Consequently, a considerable further narrowing of his indicated popular vote percentage margins probably would not seriously endanger his re-election prospects. Polls of recent vintage show Mr. Nixon leading by good to very sizable margins in all of the eight most populous northern states except Massachusetts. Two or three of these are thought by some appraisers to be still moderately fluid. They are California (45 votes), New York (41), Michigan (21). Yet on balance, the judgments in these places is that they will all land in the Nixon electoral column on Nov. 7.

If the survey were to add their combined 107 votes to McGovern's present total, throw in 10 votes from the two doubtful states, yield a bit and give him another 37 from Rhode Island, Connecticut, Maryland, Wisconsin and South Dakota, the senator's total then would be 171, still 99 short of victory.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey won the first three of these in 1968. Wisconsin is thought to be a pretty good McGovern state, and South Dakota is his home base (though he trails now).

Again however, the important consequence of this last survey is that the weight of judgment is against McGovern in nearly all these states. Only the two doubtfuls, West Virginia's 6 and Hawaii's 4, look even near promising for him.

It should be pointed out that NEA's checking in the heavily contested large northern states (and many others) came after announcements in Hanoi, Paris and Washington made early Vietnam peace arrangement seem a plausible prospect.

NEA's survey also came after many new allegations seeming to link high Nixon aides to efforts to spy upon and sabotage Democratic activities. Contrary to some reporters' new field findings, our check did not show significant general impact damaging to Mr. Nixon.

Most political reporters and analysts and poll-takers are haunted somewhat by the memory of 1948 when the Gallup Poll forecast victory for the late Thomas E. Dewey over President Truman and numerous other specialists made similar judgments.

Politics is a more volatile and uncertain business today than it was in 1948 and it must be acknowledged that a surprise McGovern victory could somehow happen. But there simply are no signs pointing to it.

ASTROGRAPH

BY BERNICE BEDE OSOL

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY

ARIES (Mar 21-Apr 19): Your spouse or companion will rely on you to make today's plans. Others will be slightly miffed if plans are too self-centered.

TAURUS (Apr 20-May 20): A heliote may be required to finish up some things you've neglected. Working together, the tasks won't seem too unpleasant.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You can best satisfy your restlessness by being involved in a social happening. The more you mix, the happier you'll be.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your plans should center around something that's family oriented. You may be busy as a beaver but you'll enjoy it.

LEO (July 23-Aug 22): You won't want to stay at home and you shouldn't. Get out. Enjoy yourself, even if only visiting the neighbors.

VIRGO (Aug 23-Sept 22): A good day for that shopping trip. It's the type you like: lots of looking and comparing, ending up with some good bargains.

LIBRA (Sept 23-Oct 23): Wherever you go today it won't be hard to make your presence felt. Others will follow if you take the initiative.

SCORPIO (Oct 24-Nov 22): There is someone to whom you can render a valuable service. They'll be most appreciative and return the favor later.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 23-Dec 21): Active friends will make your best companions today. Pleasurable pursuits are likely to be a little more demanding.

CAPRICORN (Dec 22-Jan 19): Almost anything you do will call attention to yourself. Aspects indicate the spotlight's on you.

AQUARIUS (Jan 20-Feb 19): A new relationship is making favorable impressions, almost without your being aware it is broadening your outlook.

PISCES (Feb 20-Mar 20): The chemistry between you and a companion is deepening. Stronger bonds are building that could link you closer.

Playing Southern Cal is serious business

By HERSCHEL NIBBENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Despite what the polls say, Coach Jim Sweeney of Washington State says Southern California is not the No. 1 team in the country.

"There is no way the Trojans could beat the Miami Dolphins," Sweeney says, perhaps figuring that the whopping Southern Cal is expected to give his Cougars today may hurt less if he laughs about it.

But Sweeney, who was the district's Coach of the Year last season, also knows that playing Southern Cal is serious business.

"USC is very deserving of its No. 1 collegiate rating," he says. "Both offensively and defensively they have all the ingredients a great team must possess. The Trojans have great strength and speed and are extremely well coached."

The game will be played in the University of Washington's Husky Stadium at Seattle, which is much larger than either of Washington State's two fields.

While the Trojans are up north, their rivals for the Pacific-8 championship, the eighth-ranked UCLA Bruins, will be at home against Stanford.

Two other key games, both in the Big Eight, find third-ranked Nebraska at No. 15 Colorado and seventh-ranked Oklahoma at No. 14 Iowa State.

In the only night contests involving members of The Associated Press Top Twenty, sixth-ranked Louisiana State entertains bitter Southeastern Conference rival Mississippi while No. 17 Louisville, among the elite for the first time ever, puts its unbeaten string on the line in a Missouri Valley Conference home game against Tulsa.

Elsewhere, second-ranked Alabama hosts Mississippi State, No. 4 Michigan visits Indiana, fifth-ranked Ohio State entertains Minnesota, No. 9 Texas is at home against Southern Methodist and Maryland is at No. 10 Penn State.

Other games involving teams in the Second Ten find No. 11 Auburn at Florida, No. 12 Notre Dame vs. Navy at Philadelphia, No. 13 Tennessee at Georgia, No. 16 Missouri at Kansas State, No. 18 Texas Tech at Rice, No. 19 Air Force at Army and No. 20 Arkansas at Texas A&M.

The rest of the night schedule finds Richmond at The Citadel, Nevada-Las Vegas at Miami, Fla., Wake Forest at South Carolina, Florida A&M at Tampa, Kentucky at Tulane, Northern Illinois at Toledo, Texas-Arlington at Abilene Christian, Cincinnati at North Texas State, Long Beach State at Fresno State, Lamar U. at New Mexico State and West Texas State at San Diego State.

PRO CHARTS

by MURRAY OLDERMAN

National Conference: Western Division
—NEW ORLEANS SAINTS

J. D. Roberts

PROSPECTUS — When they were hot, they smoked. Knocked off SF, LA, Dallas—only the best. J. D. Roberts showed an old Marine's tough tactics could work with energetic young pros. At least, he got rid of all malcontents. This time around no one will take them lightly. But they'll still be erratic because of youth and give up too much defensively.

Offense

QUARTERBACK—Can Archie Manning keep running for his life, and survive? Archie's big and impressive and obviously pegged for the future of Saints. But Edd Hargett'll play, too. Rating—B-.

RUNNING BACKS—Had terrific luck with pickups like Jim Strong, James Ford, plus first-year man Bob Gresham—but bad luck in injury sector. Those three guys will have to do it again unless they're lucky again in plucking reject from waiver lists. Rating—B-.

WIDE RECEIVERS—Introduced some competition by grabbing Margene Adkins from Dallas. He had no chance there after brilliant service in Canada. Will push Al Dodd. Danny Abramowicz, remains premium target, tops in NFL last five years. Rating—B+.

TIGHT END—Dave Parks finally showed why Saints eagerly grabbed him as free agent in '68. Of course, he's pushing 31 now and little slower. But still dangerous target in clutch. Rating—B+.

LINE—Three solid vets in guards Jack Kupp (team leader), Del Williams and tackle Glen Ray Hines. Draft yield Royce Smith of Georgia, unanimous All-American who looks like kind of kid who can move right in and play pro ball. But they could still use couple more bodies. Rating—B-.

Defense

LINE—Obviously, Saints need big stuff up front. But Roberts likes 'em eager and agile, too, which is why 11th round unknown like Bob Pollard turned out to be most pleasant surprise of '71. Richard Neal never has quite lived up to early billing but has moved into end job. Joe Owens, Dave Long fill out foursome but there's always room for another pleasant surprise. Rating—B-.

LINEBACKERS—Got to be some changes here. Fine opportunity for rookie Willie Hall of USC. Also got Bob Grant from Redskins—he's got the physique and the experience. But this area will be in a state of flux right up until start of season. Rating—C-.

SECONDARY—Trades brought in Jim Duncan (Colts), John Mallory (Falcons). But they're merely depth for developing quartet of Delles Howell, D'Artagnan Martin at corners, Doug Wyatt and Hugo Hollas at safeties. None has more than two years experience. They exemplify over-all youth of Saints' squad. Rating—B-.

KICKING—Charlie Durkee's come-through as place-kicker justified release of Tom Dempsey last year. Charlie's forte is short-range accuracy. Julian Fagan's got strong leg for punting. Rating—B-.

SPECIAL TEAMS—Looking for better returns and should get them from Duncan and Adkins. Former was big threat with Colts couple of years ago. Rating—B-.

Prediction

Fourth in division. Not for lack of spirit, but shortage of flesh in relation to division opponents.

Leadership question to be settled

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

This is the weekend that is for several National Football League teams and the weekend that could be for Larry Brown.

One division lead will be settled head-to-head and some others might easily change hands while Brown, the Washington Redskins' powerhouse runner, hopes to hit the 1,000-yard rushing mark in Sunday's action.

The Cincinnati Bengals and Pittsburgh Steelers, tied with 5-2 records in the American Football Conference's Central Division, will settle the matter of leadership there.

The first-place Oakland Raiders and runner-up Kansas City Chiefs, separated by a half-game, will battle for supremacy in the AFC's Western Division.

The Atlanta Falcons, a half-game behind Los Angeles in the National Football Conference's Western Division, visit the Rams in another showdown struggle.

The NFC's Central Division tie between the Detroit Lions and Green Bay Packers should also be unlocked—but on separate battlefields. The Lions play the Chicago Bears while the Packers meet the San Francisco 49ers.

Brown, meanwhile, leads the Redskins against the New York Jets in an inter-conference battle that will make reverberations in the Eastern Divisions of both conferences.

Brown, who has an NFL-leading 841 yards, will attempt to help his team remain atop the NFC East. The Redskins hold a one-game lead over the Dallas Cowboys in that race.

The Jets, two games behind the Miami Dolphins in the AFC East, can't afford to slip any further behind.

It won't matter what the Jets do, however, if the Dolphins keep playing as they have been this season.

MAJOR HOOPLE'S FOOTBALL FORECAST

Rough road ahead---

Conference clashes dominate Saturday sled; Hoople picks Nebraska, Michigan, LSU, Yale

By MAJOR AMOS B. HOOPLE
Father Of The Forward Pass

Egad, friends, almost as quick as a wink we have passed the mid-point of the collegiate grid season and are moving into the November conference showdown clashes.

Feelings in the Big Eight will run high this Saturday as giant-killer Colorado takes on favored Nebraska and Oklahoma meets Iowa State. We see Nebraska's Cornhuskers keeping their league record clean by whipping the Buffaloes, 28-21. Oklahoma, with one eye on its Turkey Day meeting with Nebraska, will romp over Iowa State, 47-10.

In the Big Ten, undefeated Michigan and Ohio State, aiming for their conference title clash on Nov. 25, will have little trouble with Indiana and Minnesota respectively. The Hoople System picks 'em, Michigan 36, Indiana 18, and Ohio State 27, Minnesota 16. To those of you-kaff-kaff—who sent us complimentary notes on our narrowly missed upset pick of Wisconsin over Ohio State's Buckeyes: C'est la guerre! The football indeed bounces funny and last Saturday it bounced Ohio State's way—um-kumph! The spotlight clash in the Southeastern Conference matches unbeaten LSU and always dangerous Mississippi under the mazdas at Baton Rouge. We look for the Fighting Tigers to repel the Mississippi Rebels, 24-14. Alabama, the league's only other undefeated entry will know they've been in a battle as they edge Mississippi State 28-15—har-rumph!

In a real barn-burner, we give the edge to the Longhorns, 28-21, over the SMU Mustangs.

In the game that may well settle the Ivy League race, once-defeated Yale entertains the undefeated but once-tied Big Green of Dartmouth. Your fearless forecaster gives the nod to Yale, 26-22—Boola-Boola!

Other contests worthy of special note match Tennessee and Georgia, Kansas State and Missouri, and unbeaten Louisville vs. Tulsa. We confidently predict victories for Tennessee, Missouri and Louisville.

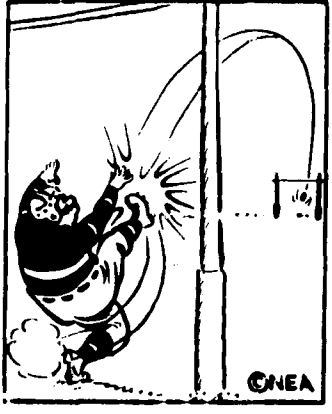

In the annual grudge battle between arch rivals West Virginia and Pittsburgh, our choice is the rugged Mountaineers to win by a narrow 20-16 margin over the Pitt Panthers—har-rumph!

Now go on with the forecast.

Taught to Win

So strongly do the Asmat people of New Guinea believe in equality that when some schoolchildren were taught to play soccer, the games invariably ended in ties and only after much prompting did they learn to play to win.

Don Wunderly Improving each week

By CLAY HENRY

Don Wunderly will tell you that a good football team has to have a great defensive unit.

Wunderly, a 6-3 and 221-pound defensive tackle, still thinks his Arkansas Razorbacks have a chance to become a quality team.

"We're improving every week," Wunderly said. "I think that to tell though, we need to get everybody healthy."

"We've had a lot of people out with major injuries," he said. "We need to work on the pass rush. We can help out our defensive secondary if we put some pressure on the quarterback."

Wunderly says his best game this season was against Oklahoma State.

"I made a lot of tackles, so in that respect, OSU was my best game," he said. "I think I've played better in spots though."

Wunderly alternated at tackle last year earning a letter.

"This season, I'm playing against the run better than last year," he said. "Last year, I think I played against the pass better."

Wunderly's home in Fort Scott, Kansas is only a couple of blocks from that of Hogs' defensive end coach Lon Farrell's.

"Coach Farrell recruited me and Arkansas was the only place I visited," Wunderly said. "Arkansas is the closest major college to my home."

Wunderly played on the kickoff team against Texas A&M last year in the Hogs' 17-9 loss at Little Rock.

"Texas A&M really came out and hit us," he said. "We have a lot of respect for the Aggies, and we know they will be ready for us again this year."

Wunderly and the Razorbacks will play the Aggies in College Station Saturday at 1:30 p.m.

Lineup Selection

In All-Star baseball games, the managers of the previous year's championship teams manage the squads. The managers, coaches and players select the starting lineups and the All-Star managers select the pitchers and substitutes.
